Headline:
Brightening up on Sunday. Warm with some sunshine on Monday.

Today:
A largely cloudy morning with perhaps the odd spot of rain in western areas early. Becoming brighter for most during the afternoon, with a bit of sunshine likely in southern parts later. Rather mild and breezy. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Tonight:
A dry evening with largely clear skies. Becoming mostly cloudy later, with perhaps the odd outbreak of drizzle over the South Downs. Remaining breezy, keeping temperatures on the mild side. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Monday:
Wind gradually easing through the day. Dry and mostly cloudy at first, but becoming warm and largely sunny during the afternoon. A fine and clear evening. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Dry, sunny and very warm Tuesday and Wednesday, but cooler along the south coast. Light winds. Cloudier though still dry on Thursday, some sunny spells likely but feeling cooler.
